FCC Members Face Charges

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—Allegations of personal misconduct directed in a congressional staff report against the chairman and four other members of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Rep. Moulder, (D-Mo) said today.

All seven commissioners, along with eight other witnesses, have been invited to testify at hearings starting Monday before a House Commerce subcommittee study federal regulatory agencies.

Among the other witnesses are three former commissioners and several members of the broadcasting industry. The subcommittee has not formally endorsed the staff report, which pictures some of the FCC commissioners as improperly accepting industry favors, but it voted to provide all of them with copies. The alleged favors included travel expenses and free color TV sets.

Chairman Doerfer has described the staff report, prepared by Committee Counsel Bernard Schwartz, as "most inaccurate and misleading." When large sections of the report appeared in print last week, Moulder declined to release it on the ground this might be construed as subcommittee approval of its contents.

Russia May Also Have New Sputnik

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—Government Intelligence experts reported today they had some evidence Russia has fired a big missile into outer space. They said this missile might have thrust a third and bigger Soviet satellite into the heavens but they acknowledged they were not sure.

No government department or agency was willing to say on the record that it knew positively the Soviets had launched what was described as a very large missile. These authorities, however, who usually keep close check of Soviet developments, said evidence they have received seems pretty good to them.

This information became available a few hours after these and other officials reported the Soviets were about ready to fire a missile. The implication of the new report was that, if true, the Soviets launched it very recently.

Speculation about a new Soviet earth satellite but did not rule out other possibilities, including an attempt to hit the moon. Guarded remarks of a number of officials here, plus the refusal to comment by other usually well-informed sources, lent an air of expectancy in key government departments.

One informant said he was personally prepared for a Moscow announcement that "a new bigger and fancier satellite" has been put into orbit.

Some authorities long have expected the Soviets to launch such a satellite quickly as soon as the United States finally succeeds in putting its first such baby moon into the heavens.

The Soviet aim, they said, would be to blanket news of the American achievement by boasting about a more impressive one of their own.

Closed Luncheon
At a closed luncheon session Nixon told the Republicans that to regain control of Congress their party is going to have to have favorable economic conditions prevailing before the election. He said he was confident an upturn would come before that time.

Nixon's remarks in a session that lasted nearly two hours and was interrupted many times by applause, were relayed to newsmen by committee officials.

Eisenhower said in a prepared speech that the present period of business decline is one of "consolidating the gains of recent years."

"The forces of growth may be expected to reassert themselves later in the year, because the American economy remains basically confident."

Eisenhower said it is a "good solid Republican conviction that government should continue taking all proper measures wherever necessary to help promote renewed expansion in output and employment." But he said he rejects the suggestions of "a few political Cassandra's" that a deep depression is ahead that would require "panicky government intervention on a massive scale."

Launching Received As 'Great News'
CAMBRIDGE, Jan. 31 (AP)—The launching of the Army's Jupiter-C missile was termed "great news" tonight by Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.

"We congratulate the Army on what can be a marvelous achievement," he said.

Dr. Whipple said he was "highly delighted" and anxious to learn if the missile successfully placed a satellite into orbit.

He said there could be no observations in the United States of the possible satellite until twilight tomorrow. He said the observatory has a "system all set up for these observations."

Army's Jupiter-C Leaves Launching Stand At 10:48

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Jan. 31 (AP)—The Army's Jupiter-C missile blasted off tonight, carrying a satellite into space.

Army officials said immediately after the launching that they were certain that the missile had succeeded in propelling the first American "moon" into orbit around the earth.

The satellite nose section of the missile must climb to an altitude of at least 200 miles and attain a speed of 18,000 miles an hour in order to establish a successful orbit.

The huge vehicle, some 70 feet tall, roared away from its launching stand at 10:48 p.m. EST.

The missile was off to a beautiful launching. It rose slowly at first in a huge splash of flame with a roar that could be heard for miles. The Defense Department announced a few minutes after

SOMETHING LIKE THIS — The Jupiter-C missile appeared something like this last night just before being launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla. One picture above was taken during the day and the other at night under almost exactly the same conditions as last night at the launching.

We Told You So

When Russia launched its Sputnik, We told you not to worry. The U. S. had to have one. We just weren't in a hurry. Now we've got one up there. Revolving out in space. And the Reds are sure of one thing—We're still in the missile race.

Williams Plans To Seek Post

A RACE FOR the Republican County chairmanship loomed yesterday as a major feature of May's primary election.

Incumbent chairman B. K. Williams indicated that he will be a candidate to succeed himself. Formal announcement of his candidacy is expected next week.

Gerald A. Snyder, a Republican State committeeman from East Stroudsburg announced his own candidacy for the post Thursday. In his announcement, Snyder said that Williams had "expressed his desire to retire from the party leadership."

The young East Stroudsburg Republican also noted that "He (Williams) has said this both to the executive committee of the party and to party workers on numerous occasions."

Williams yesterday denied that he had any plans to retire from the chairman's job. He has held the post since 1945.

"All but two of Monroe County's 64 Republican committeemen have signed a petition asking me to run again," Williams said. "I intend to be a candidate."

Snyder has been a member of the State committee for two years. In announcing his candidacy, he said that he had been urged by party workers to seek the post in answer to a call for "young leadership" within the Republican party.

Pennsylvania's Small Schools To Remain Behind Eight Ball

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third in a series of articles to be written by Leonard Randolph, who was a first hand observer at Gov. George Leader's state education conference in Harrisburg this week.

By Leonard Randolph
NO MATTER how Pennsylvania slices its education pie for "improved instruction" the small school will be behind the eight ball.

Although the "little" school district is now on its way out in the Commonwealth, there are still enough of these to make standardized education methods difficult to achieve.

For this reason, the Governor's conference in Harrisburg brought renewed support for a movement already begun and largely carried out by the State Department of Public Instruction through legislation.

During the past 20 years, more and more small districts have combined into large units. These have taken the form of jointures, unions or mergers. The net goal in each case has been a bigger district which would be better able to provide up-to-date science laboratories, remedial reading courses, psychological testing and the myriad other "extras" in education.

Gradually, however, educators have come to the conclusion that these have ceased being "extras" and have rapidly become "necessities" in everyday school life.

One of the questions put to delegates at the conference asked if the Department should require minimum installations of equipment for a science laboratory in all schools.

There was marked unanimity in the answers given by the 278 persons who replied on the short-form questionnaire turned in at the end of the session on science. The breakdown showed 233 answered "yes," 35 answered "no" and 10 did not vote.

None of the delegates recommended methods whereby small school districts could purchase such laboratories. Some recommendations may be made when the final results of full questionnaires are returned to the DPL. Our primary recommendation will undoubtedly be made, however. This will be that the state renew its efforts to set up and put into effect intermediate county units throughout the state. Such units are made up of two or more county education offices.

Enlargement of the administrative system for education would make encouragement of joint school districts easier. It would also provide for a more economical use of special facilities.

At a press conference this week, Dr. Charles Boehm, superintendent of Public Instruction, told reporters that there are still 20 high schools with 100 or less students; 57 with from 101 to 200 and 65 with 201 to 300 students.

"There is no doubt, whatever, in any of our minds, that the children attending small schools are working at a disadvantage," Dr. Boehm said.

There are several reasons for this. Small high schools lack the facilities and equipment for full-scale courses in such fields as science. They lack the space, much of the time, for the right kind of instruction in varied fields.

More important, they also lack the teachers. Boehm said that for high schools with 100 or less students, the average number of teachers is 4.6. For schools with 200 or less students, the average number of teachers is 8.9 and for those of 300 or less enrollment, there are an average of 13.5 teachers.

One possible solution to the problem of providing science or specialized training for qualified students in a small school would be to send them, on tuition, to a larger one.

There is one big drawback to this proposal, however. School directors in most small districts are hard put to find finances for tuition rates or transportation in such cases.

Whatever the solution may be, it seems likely to work a hardship on the "little man" way down at the end of the education line.

Blazing Guns Enter Probe Of Labor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—Senate racket investigators produced today a document designed to show that blazing guns and murder back in the 1930s paved the way to power for William E. Maloney, president of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Whoever was responsible—and there was no definite evidence that Maloney was—death removed from his path.

Dennis Bruce Ziegler, a leader of a faction which fought bitterly against Maloney in the days when he ran Chicago Local 150 of the IUOE.

Arthur Huddell, president of the international union, Huddell was succeeded by John Posschl. Posschl died in 1940 of natural causes and Maloney took over the next year.

The committee document, a staff memorandum drawn up by investigator Pierre Salinger from newspaper accounts and other sources, said Ziegler was murdered Feb. 24, 1933—a year and a day after a paper found in his files "indicated that he had been threatened by Maloney" and a John E. Lynch.

During Period
The memo said that during a period when "Maloney was using his power" in the IUOE, Huddell was shot in a Washington, D.C. restaurant by a lone gunman, wounded near the heart, and died of pneumonia 10 days later.

It said that according to the Washington Herald of July 30, 1932, "It was reported that a Chicago gunman, George MacSullen," said he had been hired by Maloney and Posschl to shoot Huddell and Frank E. Langdon, editor of the international's newspaper.

The memo said Posschl and Langdon were dining with Huddell at the time of the shooting. It said Posschl was uninjured and failed to say whether Langdon was hit.

Of Huddell, Salinger testified: "He was murdered."

Ike, Nixon Confident Of Upswing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon predicted to cheering Republicans today that an economic upswing will be under way by election time next fall.

Eisenhower and Nixon addressed separate sessions of an all-day meeting at which the Republican National Committee also heard Cabinet members predict the present business decline will be of short duration.

Both the President and vice president promised administration action to bolster the economy, if that is needed. But both made it clear they oppose any massive government spending to counter the current slump.

Speaking at a breakfast session before he took off for a weekend of golf in Augusta, Ga., Eisenhower urged GOP campaigners in this year's battle for control of Congress not to let "the dismal walls of despair" from Democrats drown out what he called his administration's "straight story of steady progress."

Closed Luncheon
At a closed luncheon session Nixon told the Republicans that to regain control of Congress their party is going to have to have favorable economic conditions prevailing before the election. He said he was confident an upturn would come before that time.

THE FLOWERING HEART—February may be a month of chill winds in the hills and the soft shower of falling snow in the pines, but it has one fine point in its favor. February (in case the candy ads and the slings and arrows of outrageous card manufacturers may have passed you) is the Month of the Heart, the Season of Love and Good Cheer Among Sweethearts. Here, with we offer the prettiest Valentine we could find—a lovely young lass named Carolyn Riley, a freshman at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, who hails from Drexel Hill. Carolyn is a Sunday School teacher, sings in the college choir, is the daughter of a pharmacist—and (we didn't believe it either) has no steady boy friend. Carolyn is The Daily Record's calendar girl for February, the month of St. Valentine's Day.

Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau Adds Vote Of Confidence To Hotel Association

THE INCREASE in minimum wages for restaurant, hotel and motel workers, effective May 12, came up for discussion yesterday at a special meeting of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Elwood Huffman presided.

A large number of members attended the meeting and approved a motion giving a vote of confidence to the Pennsylvania

Hotels Assn. in its fight to test the legality of the Wage Board for Restaurants, Hotels and Motels, as presently constituted.

The State Department of Labor and Industry last Friday accepted the board's recommendations for increasing minimum wages paid to women and youths under 21. The wages of older male workers are not fixed.

Some question has raised as to whether the Wage Board appointed by Labor and Industry Secretary William L. Batt Jr. is legally constituted since its membership does not include a representative of the hotel and restaurant industry.

A legal test presumably would be based on that point.

Sunday School Lesson Children To Hear Story Of Trip By Jesus

Scripture—Luke 4:14-21; II Corinthians 9:6-8; Galatians 6:1-5; Hebrews 4:14-16; 10:23-25; I Peter 2:9-10.

ALL CHILDREN in the Sunday school will be interested in the picture Luke gives us of Jesus going back to the town in which He grew up and went to the synagogue to worship.

Many will have heard their parents or grandparents tell of their native towns and of their later visits to them.

Jesus was at the beginning of His ministry when he went to Nazareth. He went to the synagogue and was handed the book of the prophet Elijah where it is written, "The spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor;

He hath sent Me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

Then Christ closed the book and began to say to them, "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." All who had known Him were amazed at his gracious words.

Now about Christian giving. Paul wrote to the Corinthians that every man (woman or child) should give according to his heart, "not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." Let us remember this when we make our gifts to the needy.

To the Galatians Paul wrote that if a man sins, "ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted, Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

We are all tempted, so if one you know gives way to temptation, do not condemn, but consider your own faults and think how a temptation might come to you and you, too, fall. Those who sin should be corrected, but let us not do it in a manner that implies we are always righteous and would not yield to temptation. Self-righteousness is also a sin.

To the Hebrews Paul writes: "Let us hold the profession of our faith without wavering... And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."

Attending church services and Sunday School regularly is one of the most rewarding experiences of our week. To meet with fellow Christians to extend friendly greetings, to sing the hymns, to hear the preacher's (or teacher's) message, makes our Sabbath complete.

Children who are brought up in the faith of their church and are taught of some services they may render to the church are much less likely to get into trouble than those who are not so trained.

To the Hebrews Paul also writes reminding us that if we are tempted we "have a great high priest... Jesus, the Son of God," who was tempted as we are and remained sinless. He will forgive and help us to resist temptation.

One of the most inspiring thoughts to this writer is the idea that we can be God's fellow workers, as recorded in I Corinthians: "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building."

Even in the troubled world in which we live, if we live righteously lives, have faith and work—each one in his own way—toward peace and good-will among men, we are truly fellow workers with God.

MEMORY VERSE—"We are laborers together with God."—I Corinthians 3:9.

Rev. Wunder Announces Sermon Topic

"MEDIOCRITY and Mastery" has been chosen as the theme for the sermon to be delivered at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow in Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, by Rev. William F. Wunder.

The scriptural setting for this Pauline message is from the Epistle for Septuagesima Sunday (70 days before Easter) from I Corinthians 9:24-10:5. Applications will be drawn for 20th century Christian usage.

Altar flowers will be placed by Mrs. Jane Treible and daughters, Audrey, Grace and Gretchen, in memory of husband and father, Lloyd W. Treible. Bulletins will be presented by Mrs. David Coffman, Woodland Road, Mount Pococo, in memory of her son, Clifford David Coffman; and by Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus G. Miller, Jr., in honor of the birthdays of her mother, Mrs. Fred Martz on Feb. 4 and his father, Cyrus G. Miller, Sr., on Feb. 8.

Ushers Harry E. McClintock, Chester A. Pipper, Paul H. Cortright and Harold P. Boushell will serve as ushers while Bruce Bean, John Baird and Brian Morris will be acolytes. Mrs. Elmer Christine, Mrs. Gerald Snyder and Mrs. Rudolph Iltz, Sr., will comprise the February welcoming trio in the narthex. Mrs. Willis Schubert will be in charge of the nursery during the worship hour.

Jude, and the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Prof. Carroll All, will sing the anthem, "Consider and Hear Me" by Pflueger with Mrs. Alice Stokes singing an alto solo. But when Christmas Day was established generally throughout the church, the date of the Presentation was shifted to Feb. 2.

The Emperor Justinian introduced the Feast at Constantinople in 542, and not long afterwards it began to be observed at Rome.

However, the blessing and distribution of candles, which now forms one of the principal features of the service in the Roman rite cannot be traced back earlier than the 11th century.

Beyond the timber line rises sheer rock, towering above the clouds themselves. Looking at this great giant of nature we marvel at God's creations . . . and are aware of the comparative insignificance of man.

Yet, man is far from insignificant, save in physical size. For God, after all, made man in His image. And He gave man a brain, and a soul, with a sense of right and wrong. He gave him character and responsibility.

It is man who can progress to heights far greater than this mountain. But he needs help to do it—God's help, through the help of the Church.

You weren't meant to stand alone in this world. Remember that . . . and go to Church this Sunday.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community, and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Job For Legislators

The 85th Congress, in its second session now under way, faces perhaps the biggest test that American lawmakers have confronted since World War Two.

It will be judged by the way it rises to the necessities put upon this country by Russia's advances in satellites and missiles.

President Eisenhower's administration is being measured in the same fashion. But our government does not end at the White House gates. Congress has its own responsibilities for the safety and well-being of the American people.

The 531 men and women of the House and Senate cannot function as an executive body, of course. For one thing, the Constitution forbids it. For another, effective decision is well nigh impossible from such numbers.

But, wherever the administration's programs appear to be lacking in scope, or marked by timidity, the lawmakers can try to give them greater breadth and positiveness.

What the country has a right to expect of its lawmakers is a searching appraisal of administrative measures. Just rubber stamping won't be good enough for this session.

Inevitably, many legislators are mere followers. However, Congress is intended basically to be a creative agency in our form of government. And at no time in this century has there been greater need for its creative powers to be exercised.

Opinions Of Other Editors

25 Years Ago

Today is the 25th Anniversary of one of the black days of history. On Jan. 30, 1933, Adolf Hitler became chancellor of the German Reich and started on the road which led him close to world conquest.

It is too horrible to contemplate what might have happened had this mad man had at his disposal today's weapons of mass destruction.

It is hard to believe today that Hitler's acquisition of the chancellorship was not the main news story of that day. There were even some among us who continued to think for some time that we could do business with Hitler.

But the United States then was at the bottom of a depression. Franklin D. Roosevelt had more than a month to wait before taking the oath as the newly-elected President.

Even the internationally minded New York Times gave top billing that day—not to Hitler—but to Governor Lehman's call for 84 million dollars in new state taxes.

Those who reminisce about the "good old days" when world affairs were less complicated, might pause to wonder. Were those days of 1933 less complicated, or did they just seem so because we were semiblind to some of the evils—such as Hitlerism—that were beginning to sprout?

Failure to understand Hitlerism and to act soon enough ultimately took a terrible toll of mankind.

George Sokolsky Says...

Question Of Sincerity

When President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles say that they would like the Russians to show that they are sincere, they raise a moral issue which may be translated by the layman into the very simple terms that they believe the Russians do not mean what they say, or, in still simpler language, that they are lying.

Take, for instance, the statement which Andrei Gromyko made to the Supreme Soviet on December 21, 1957:

"You know that the 10-year discussions in the U. N. organs on the disarmament problem have not produced agreement and have now been suspended. The reason for this state of affairs is that our chief partners in the disarmament talks—the United States, the United Kingdom, as well as France, acting in line with them—do not want, as the facts have shown, to bind themselves by any commitments with regard to the restriction of armaments and measures to prevent the stockpiling and improving of nuclear weapons..."

This is literally untrue. It is not a difference of opinion. It is not a divergent view as to the facts. It is literally untrue as Gromyko knew when he said it, because Gromyko sat with Bernard Baruch during 1946 and debated just this question.

He also had private meetings with Baruch. At that time, we believed that we possessed the atom bomb and Russia did not possess it. We proposed to sacrifice our advantage, provided an adequate system of inspection and control could be devised.

Gromyko never told Baruch, naturally, that we were living in the clouds about our advantage, that Soviet Russia already had the bomb and was moving ahead with further developments. However, he rejected any system of inspection and control and from that day to this, Soviet Russia has made it absolutely impossible to reach an agreement.

In his autobiography, Bernard Baruch has much to say on this subject:

"The plan for international atomic control which I had the honor of presenting to the United Nations on behalf of the United States government did not assume that this country would hold its atomic monopoly indefinitely. We were well aware that in time we had to expect other nations to develop atomic weapons. But whether one or sixty-one nations possess nuclear weapons does not alter the unyielding fact that no nation can have effective insurance against atomic destruction unless there is a sure system of control to guard against the diversion of atomic energy for military purposes."

Then he concludes: "Whatever lies behind the Soviet attitude, the choice before the world remains the same—real control or none. A ban on the testing of nuclear weapons will not meet the problem. Even if these tests are discontinued, the dread danger of atomic attack still would threaten..."

"The grim danger of radioactive fallout would disappear if effective control could be established over all nuclear weapons. There would then be no need for any tests; the scientists of the world would be working together to expand the peaceful uses of the atom."

Gromyko, in the speech quoted above, says, however: "The United States and the United Kingdom, as hitherto, evade a solution of the disarmament problem, making an appropriate agreement contingent on a whole series of farfetched and unfeasible terms, especially with regard to control over disarmament..."

Of course, the difficulty here is that as long as the Russians object to inspection and control, we have to take them at their word. We do not object to inspection and control. The British do not object to inspection and control.

The Russians would prefer a prohibition against the manufacture of atom and hydrogen bombs. Suppose we agree to their terms and we did sign a solemn treaty, after a Summit Conference. Then we stop making bombs and they do not stop. Then what?

The issue is stated simply but not oversimplified. If they want to end the manufacture of bombs, why not agree to a system of inspection and control? It is, of course, a sacrifice of a degree of sovereignty. We are willing to make that sacrifice. They are not.

As one reads the whole of Gromyko's speech, it is not difficult to understand why his sincerity is questioned. I, not being engaged in diplomacy, would say he just plain lied.

The Pennsylvania Story

Shortway Short-Circuit

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — When bespectacled George Leader bundled into Williamsport this past week for a pep talk to the Lycoming County party faithful, he was fully expected to bring up the sometimes testy subject of the proposed Keystone Shortway—the already cleared $300 million 290-mile four-lane expressway slated for Pennsylvania's mid-section.

In fact just before the Governor spoke, Lycoming County Democratic Chairman Charles Hallow told the assembled Democratic snowplowers that the Governor would indeed talk about the Shortway... A nettled George Leader, however neglected to even mention the subject dear to the heart of Shortway-prodding Lycoming countians.

The subject had been on the gubernatorial agenda... In fact word had been passed to engineers and officials of the Department of Highways working on the project to button up and withhold any comment until after the gubernatorial Williamsport speech... Reason for the last-minute Shortway short-circuit: recent charges that the administration is using the Shortway project as a political tool have become hot and nettling... Last minute decision: a Democratic political gathering would hardly be the place to discuss the subject under the circumstances.

The Empty Shoes—A pair of empty "shoes" Pennsylvania Democrats will be hard pressed to fill were officially and formally left on Capitol Hill this week as former Westmoreland County State Senator John H. Dent took his oath of office as the new congressman from the 21st District (Westmoreland County).

The difficulty is not in the senatorial post but in the Senate Democratic floor leadership post the stocky former State Senator held for most of the twenty years he served as a member of the Senate.

Republicans and Democrats both concede that the colorful and hard-hitting Jeannette lawmaker with his nimble speech and quick wit has been one of the most outstanding floor leaders the minority has enjoyed... A good bet for Dent's successor: plodding, not so eloquent but ardent close-to-the-vest administration supporter, State Senator William J. Lane of Washington County.

Pay Raise For Military? — The outlook in Congress for a pay raise for the nation's military personnel is good but there may be some changes in the formula proposed by the Eisenhower administration.

Both Democrats and Republicans generally are in favor of boosting military pay in an effort to keep trained men in the service who otherwise might leave for higher-paying civilian jobs.

It's likely that the servicemen will get at least the six per cent boost asked by the administration but there may be some carping in Congress at applying the raise to privates and general alike.

Behind The Scenes
In Hollywood by Harrison Carroll

Hollywood — The rumor that Greta Garbo might return to the screen in "The Miracle" boils down, like all the others, to wishful thinking.

Director Irving Rapper, back from Europe, tells me he hasn't talked to the glamorous Swede and that she hasn't read the script.

So far the only encouragement he has had is word from her agents that she has expressed interest in the project.

"I hear Miss Garbo is coming out here in a few weeks," he says, "and I hope she will read the script. The role of the Reverend Mother would be a lovely, understanding, warm and serene part for her."

Back In Baltimore, Jeff Donnell had one of the proudest evenings of his life. She attended the testimonial dinner given by Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland in honor of her father, Harold E. Donnell, who retired after 28 years as head of the state's penal institutions.

Jeff stopped off in Chicago to see admirer John Bricker and got back here just in time to help her son, Mike, celebrate his 16th birthday.

Mike, Jeff's son by William Anderson, already is six feet, two.

In spite of what Cathy Case says, she and Elvis Presley have been seeing each other. In fact, according to Elvis, he is the only girl he has dated since his arrival here to do "King Creole"

Coffee Pot Simmer—A number of Pennsylvania hotel and restaurant operators are anything but pleased with the new minimum wage scale just promulgated by the heavily pro-labor Democratic Leader Administration.

To many an operator already biting his fiscal nails the new state regulations smack too strongly of a straight-out-and-out union negotiated contract... with the State Department of Labor and Industry acting as the union... Example: commented Secretary of Labor and Industry William L. Batt Jr., in announcing the new rates: "women and minors have been employed in these occupations for wages unreasonably low and not fairly commensurate with the value of the services rendered, and not adequate to maintain an adequate standard of living"...

Seek MacArthur's Advice

Washington — Look for a barrage of demands in Congress that Gen. Douglas MacArthur be consulted on armed services rivalries and other middle-age problems...

The Senate prepared a subcommittee, headed by Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas has announced plans to call a number of distinguished, retired military leaders for their views.

Included are Gen. George C. Marshall, Omar Bradley and Carl (Toohay) Spaatz, but no mention was made of MacArthur. This was a source of irritation to the five-star hero's friends on Capitol Hill.

As a result, MacArthur's admirers are reported to have in careful preparation a ringing call for consultation with the man who has been hailed by some students of military history as one of the great commanders of all time.

Publication of President Eisenhower's budget, however, indicates the administration's determination to finance increased defense spending out of savings in other programs.

Should the President be wholly or largely successful in this undertaking, the increase of federal money in the economic stream will be held at a minimum, with a correspondingly duller impact on national production and employment.

Actually, the best hope for a limited or short-range economic slump is the government's recognition that it could be of extended duration.

If signs of the latter increase, look for still further easing of bank interest rates and federal steps to up the rate of acceptance of government-ordered military hardware.

What a difference a few hours on a plane make! Tony Steel, in India for "Harry Black," is working in the jungle where the temperature is 110. Wife Anita Ekberg flew to visit her family in Malmö, Sweden, where the temperature has been 15 degrees above zero.

The Mel Tormes had just come in from visiting friends when their toy French poodle suddenly went berserk in the children's bedroom. Mel managed to isolate the crazed animal but was bitten on the hand. By the time the vet got there, the dog was lying prone and frothing at the mouth.

They thought sure it was rabies and were preparing to take the Pasteur treatments when it was discovered the dog had chewed up a tube of glue used in making model airplanes. The ether and the banana oil in the glue had brought on the convulsion.

The dog now is okay.

Choir To Appear At Church

by Jim Riley

There's plenty of excitement at Grace Lutheran Church this week.

The reason is the fact that the famous Gettysburg Choir will present a concert at the church tomorrow.

According to church members, this is one of the highlights of the current season.

The Gettysburg Choir comes to town with a host of press clippings and praise ringing in their ears.

A successful local concert is virtually assured.

Jack Paar, TV comic-star, once confused his draft board by explaining loftily, "I only go to every other war." He says he knew when World War II finally was won: "Gis started losing again on TV quiz shows."

Paar says he's discovered why revolving doors in department stores often are so difficult to push. It's because when you budge those doors they're really supplying the power for the escalators, too.

If you don't believe it, visit any department store on a Sunday. The revolving doors won't move—and those escalators aren't working, either!"

Leo Guild tells about a Hollywood publicity man who concocted a stunt whereby a client would land a helicopter on the post office and mail a letter. "Nothing doing," said the client. "It's safe as sitting in an armchair. It's colossal!" declared the agent. "Then you do it first," said the client.

The publicist did it. The client, waiting on the post office roof, said, "You win," climbed into the helicopter to fly off and repeat the stunt for the photographers. The publicist then fainted dead away.

OFF THE RECORD

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

THE Mountaineers rested up last night. It was a deserved one for the chatters of John Kupiec who had to battle down to the wire and past the wire in their last two winning efforts.

In its tussle with second place finishers Whitehall, Stroudsburg High had to go into overtime before subduing the very much surprised Zephyrs. The last time out against Slatington the Mountaineers had to overcome a 10-point third period deficit before putting up the victory flag at the end of the regulation 32 minutes.

Stroudsburg is moving in the direction of what Kupiec and many fans had expected to start at the beginning of the season. Evidently Kupiec, who couldn't find one guard at the start of the year capable of handling the outside duties has come up with two in Dick Everitt and Johnny Gilpin who are filling the bill admirably.

It was these two minute-size performers who turned defeat into victory against Slatington with their continual ball-hawking and interception of passes. Winning combinations don't turn up overnight. It takes a little juggling here and a switch there to find the right unit that jives on all beats. Apparently, Kupiec hit the right note when he rediscovered Everitt and Gilpin.

The smallest pair were there all the time but situations prevented them from making appearances together. Against Whitehall the time was ripe. The Mountaineers were struggling along on with five straight Lehigh Valley League losses ringing in their ears. Every other combo was tried, why not Everitt and Gilpin with proven starters Ted Williams, Tom Gross and Ted Williams? It worked, somewhat against the Zephyrs and got better against the Slaters.

They say time waits for no man. Kupiec, Everitt and Gilpin proved this wrong 100 per cent.

The Warhampton Motor Club, made up of members from Warren County, N.J., and Northampton County, will hold a race on ice at Mountain Spring Lake, near Reiders, Sunday.

Spectators may watch the event from their cars parked on a hillside overlooking the lake.

BOWLING TIDBITS—Bill Lanterman topped the pins for a 564 in the Industrial League and took week high honors in the process.

'Iron Five' Combine In Cavalier Win

THEY MADE IT. Those hitherto luckless East Stroudsburg High Cavaliers threw away dame fortune and relied on sheer guts last night. And it paid off in dividends as Doug Schoonovers young five upset Fountain Hill, 60-56, before a screaming 400 in the North Courtland St. gym.

With an "Iron Man" combination of Jim Kindrew, Dale Metzgar, Johnny Hindman, Alex Sydelnik and Bill Hillman going the distance, the Cavaliers did it the hard way, overcoming two 12-point deficits before opening their second half race in the Lehigh-Northampton League with a well-earned triumph.

Kindrew, the portside shotmaker, left-handed in 26 points to lead the Cavaliers attack. Metzgar, the driving captain, was next with 19.

While the expected Eastburg point-getters got the points, it still took Sydelnik with a late dribbling keep, and Hillman with a second half rebounding effort, and Hindman ball-hawking to preserve the win.

Except for a brief spell in the opening period, the Cavaliers were behind, and at one point in the second trailed 29-18. In the third quarter, Fountain Hill, the loop's champions the past four years, pulled away to a 41-29 bulge.

Pull In Belts
But here the Cavaliers pulled in their belts and exerted the maximum effort. With Kindrew and Metzgar tossing them in, Eastburg rallied to a 47-46 advantage just as the fourth canto started.

However a short momentary lapse inserted itself in the Cavaliers attack and the John Lefko-led Hillers pulled back into the lead, 56-49.

The spread wasn't in affect long as Kindrew and Metzgar joined forces with their other mates and literally leaped into a 57-56 lead.

Steals Pass
Here Sydelnik, stole a pass and dribbled around to knock off valuable seconds and he stepped to the foul line to net a charity toss, and make it 58. Right before the final whistle Hillman made it official with a field goal.

East Stroudsburg's junior varsity lost in the preliminary dropping an 84-29 verdict to the Little Hillers.

$65,000 For Spahn

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 30 (AP)—Warren Spahn, who will be 37 before the 1958 baseball season opens, signed his 14th contract with the Braves today for a reported $65,000.

The veteran left-hander, winner of the Cy Young Award as the majors' outstanding pitcher last season, came to terms after a brief chat with General Manager John Quinn.

The salary would make Spahn one of the highest—if not the highest—paid pitchers in the majors.

Bangor Boys, Girls Teams Drop Verdicts

BANGOR High's boys and girls varsity basketball teams went down to defeat last night. The Slater males dropped a 55-46 decision to Phillipsburg on the losers floor, while the Slaterettes lost to Easton's lassies 63-40 on the Roverettes hardwoods.

Phillipsburg had to stave off a Bangor bid in the second and third quarters before ringing up its 10th victory in 12 games.

With Frankie Butz, Ron Cory and Brian Jones pacing the attack, the Slaterettes moved to a 39-14 deadlock in the third quarter. However, the Garnet outscored Bangor in the last eight minutes to gain the nod.

Butz was high for Bangor with 16. Dick Lawrence, of Phillipsburg, took game honors with 19.

8th Victim
The Slaterettes were the ninth straight victim for Easton girls in the East Penn Girls court circuit.

Barbara Holland, with 19, and Mary Ann Rowlands, kept the Slaterettes in the fray with 19 and 17. Jean Fegley headed the Roverettes with 29.

Bangor's junior varsity boys team won over Phillipsburg's jayvees, 57-46, as Barry Gleim tossed in 16 for the winners.

Stags' Five Tops Moscow, Grabs Lead

NEWFOUNDLAND—Greene-Dreher-Sterling High moved into sole possession of first place in the Southern Division of the Wayne Basketball Conference last night by tripping top contender, Moscow, 67-52.

Paced by Ron Robacker's 27 points and Bob Haag's 22, the Stags of Henry Arneberg grabbed a three-point lead in the opening quarter and kept increasing the pad the rest of the way.

5-1 Record
The victory was the fifth in six league starts for Greene-Dreher-Sterling, while the setback gave Moscow a 4-2 record in the Southern loop.

Keith Fleckenstein led a balanced Moscow offense with 14. Moscow turned the table on the Little Stags in the preliminary, winning 51-48. Rochford was high scorer for Greene-Dreher's jayvees with 18.

Squirrel Tough Nut To Crack In Home

SWIFTWATER—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nauman, on Woodland Road, was the subject of some vandalism early Thursday morning. The vandals was a gray squirrel, which had apparently come down through the chimney of the fireplace.

When the Naumans' five-year-old daughter arose, she called to her parents, "Who is in the living room?"
The screen was knocked down in front of the fireplace, lamps were knocked off the mantle, and a pair of candleholders were broken, and the whole room was in a state of confusion.

The invader gave Mr. Nauman a merry chase, finally losing out on the chase when Mr. Nauman threw a coat over it and grabbed it and succeeded in putting it outdoors.

ON THE WAY OUT—ON THE WAY IN: Tobyhanna Signal Depot this week honored John Pionteki, 69, veteran of 49 years combined military and civilian service with the Army. Here Pionteki, who retired yesterday, points to tent he occupied on Tobyhanna reservation in 1913. Looking on is the Depot's newest employee, Mrs. Joan LeBar Evans, Stroudsburg. Mrs. Evans began work for the Depot last week.

Signal Depot Inspector Retires After 49 Years

FOR 49 years John Pionteki, 69, has been—in one way or another—closely associated with the United States Army.

Yesterday it was all over. At Tobyhanna Signal Depot, John Pionteki retired as an inspector. He was a civilian employee.

He had nothing but good words for the Army. "They treated me fine," Pionteki said. "I don't think I could have done any better."

Young John left home (in Medina, N. Y.) at the age of 18. Like many another young man of that age, he had one idea in mind: To see what there was of the world available to the eyes of an 18-year-old.

Totally unflustered by all that Navy hoopla, John headed straight for an Army recruiting station. He signed up in the infantry, disregarding, no doubt, the good-natured taunts of back-home buddies about "seeing the world on foot."

His first assignment was to Alaska. He helped lay the first telegraph lines for the military communications system there.

In 1910 he was reassigned to Fort Wood on Bedloe's Island, N. Y. There in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty, John and his Signal Corps depot buddies (there were 14 at the time) took up the painstaking job of supply. Off Bedloe came acetylene lamps, semaphore flags, rockets and mirrors. These were the somewhat primitive tools of visual signaling in the Army then.

There were a few pigeons around, too. But no radios. The Corps had its first mass-produced telephone by that time, however. It was called the EE-63—an antique creation with a generator that had to be hand-cranked.

In 1912, John Pionteki made his first trip to Tobyhanna—detailed there and assigned to a National Guard practice group. He was non-commissioned officer in charge of communications. He met his wife-to-be at Tobyhanna, attending a Sunday afternoon military band concert.

The budding romance was temporarily side-tracked for a short time, when John was transferred. But he came back to Tobyhanna in the Summers of 1913 and 1914. In 1915 he married the girl.

Still in communications, John served under General Pershing during the brief Mexican fracas in 1916. In World War One he saw action in France, was in the Army of Occupation in Germany, post-war.

He was honorably discharged from the Army in 1935. But the service was in his blood "and I wasn't the type to retire easily anyway." He went to work for the San Francisco General Depot as military storekeeper; stayed there until 1942.

He has also been employed at the Ogden, Utah, signal installation and at Sacramento and Baltimore. In 1953 he returned to Tobyhanna when the new depot opened here.

For John and his wife, it was a return "back home." And Tobyhanna will still be home for them, even after his retirement. They expect to "shuttle" back and forth between Tobyhanna and Florida where they have a married daughter living in Jacksonville. Another daughter lives in Connecticut. Their son now lives with them in Tobyhanna.

At a recent celebration of the Army Signal Corps' 97th birthday, John was asked to preside at the cake-cutting ceremony. He agreed.

Only one stipulation, he said. No speeches.

Everyone agreed to that. After all, one officer said, any man who's been with the Signal Corps 49 years doesn't have to make speeches.

The message has been received in good condition.

Chess Club In Regular Session

STROUDSBURG Chess Club met at the offices of John M. Price, Stroudsburg, Thursday night.

Price started the program by administering a defeat to A. J. Vlossak, Mount Pocono, but closed later with a defeat administered by William P. Deering.

Deering then took on Mitchell Stackhouse of W. Main St. in two games. Stackhouse won the first session but Deering held him to minor gains until the end-game was reached and then the best the West Main Street champ could earn was a draw.

Busy Time
Meanwhile, Vlossak was having a busy time. He beat Price in one game and then took a session away from Harold James, aspirant for the club championship. James, however, evened things up by beating the Mount Pocono entrant several games in succession.

James Heatherington took a well played game away from John Slaboski. He also defeated Earl Weiss but Edward Bosman was too much for Heatherington.

Bosman was hurled down to defeat by John Slaboski in a strenuous contest but came back to take two games from the younger player.

Hit In Head
"I talked to him about a month ago and he told me a doctor informed him he would be blind in a year unless he got special glasses. That may have had something to do with all this. I just don't know."

He said Charlie was hit in the forehead with a piece of lumber a few years ago.

Charlie had been out of work for several weeks before the killing cycle began, and had been locked out of his room for not paying his rent.

Killer's Life Marked By Bad Temper

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 31 (AP)—Charlie Starkweather is handy-legged pigeon - toed, under-developed. Without glasses he is virtually blind. At 19 he is 5 feet, 5, weighs 140 pounds.

People sometimes call him "Little Red."

That seems to bother him a lot. He wears black jacket, cowboy hat and fancy boots, and heavy, bushy sideburns.

Charlie quit school—or was kicked out—when he was 16 years old after completing the ninth grade. He apparently didn't stay around long enough to learn that lack of physical size doesn't have to be a handicap.

Tell At Strangers
Charlie used to get so mad as he lounged in the cab of his brother's garbage truck, that he would lean out of the cab and shout "Go to Hell!" at perfect strangers.

Even his father said that Charlie used to lose his temper and take on fellows twice his size—and whip them, too.

He was known among teenagers as a knife fighter, but he had only minor traffic offenses on his police record.

Harold Lantz, formerly assistant principal and now principal at Everett Junior High School here, said Charlie came to Everett after being kicked out of Irving Junior High for fighting.

He said Charlie was placed in a special education group for students with low mental ability.

Mrs. Ruth Place, retired principal of Everett, said "Charles never caused us a great deal of trouble. He didn't show a violent temper. I can think of many outstanding troublemakers over the years but Charles was not one of them. I can see him coming back at night to help a custodian clean up after a PTA meeting or school. He would even stay until 10 o'clock. I think Charles wanted very badly to be somebody."

Uses Gun
Charlie used a gun to make him somebody. He used it, and used it, and used it.

First he used it to hunt game. He got to be a crack shot. He got so he could shoot his prey squarely, his brother says. But sometimes he would empty his gun at nothing at all, just to be shooting.

A few days ago Charlie started killing people. He killed 10 of them before his gun was finally empty. And then he wilted. He became terrified for fear he would bleed to death from a superficial cut on his ear.

What made him start to kill? Who knows?

Charlie's father thinks the trouble started with Charlie's girl, 14-year-old Carl Fugate. Some of Carl's family objected to their going together. Carl is in the eighth grade and wanted to be a nurse. Her grandmother was saving money to help her.

Guy Starkweather said he guessed things just built up inside Charlie until he went berserk.

"It could have been a lot of things. He lost a couple of jobs and that girl had him wrapped around her little finger. He is to lose his eyesight within a year and still may be sick from a recent severe cold," Guy said.

Hit In Head
"I talked to him about a month ago and he told me a doctor informed him he would be blind in a year unless he got special glasses. That may have had something to do with all this. I just don't know."

He said Charlie was hit in the forehead with a piece of lumber a few years ago.

Ike Feels Trade Plan 'Essential'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower told Congress today that a five-year extension of the reciprocal trade program with broadened authority to negotiate tariff cuts is "essential to America's vital national interests."

"It will strengthen our economy which is the foundation of our national security," he said. "It will enhance the economic health and strength of the free world. It will provide a powerful force in waging total peace."

The White House said Eisenhower's program contemplates authority to reduce tariffs by five per cent each year during the next five years. After the first five per cent cut, each succeeding five per cent reduction would be applied to what remained.

Sharp Fight
The program appeared to be heading for a sharp fight in Congress, although there were some early professions of support from members of both parties.

Following up the request he made in his State of the Union message Jan. 8, Eisenhower sent a special message on the trade program to Capitol Hill. Declaring the United States cannot afford to ignore the challenge presented by Soviet Communist trade and aid programs, Eisenhower said: "The assured future of the reciprocal trade program is necessary for our national security and for our entire foreign policy."

Eisenhower cited creation of the six-nation European Economic Community as "a further and very specific factor necessitating a minimum extension of five years."

The European group—Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands—bought nearly three billion dollars worth of American goods last year. It will be setting up a common tariff against imports in 1962, near the end of the five-year renewal period proposed by Eisenhower, and the President said this country's negotiations "must be based on a clear grant of adequate authority."

Rep. Reed of New York, who normally would sponsor the administration bill as senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, refused to lend his name to it.

The fourth-ranking Republican on the committee, Rep. Kean of New Jersey, agreed to sponsor the measure. He introduced it in the House with an assertion that continuation of active international trade "is a step toward maintaining world peace."

The Ways and Means Committee has scheduled hearings on the legislation to start Feb. 17.

Narrow Price Changes On Stock Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (AP)—The stock market ended the month of January with another sluggish session today. Prices were uneven.

The market ended the first month of 1958 appreciably higher than it was at the end of 1957. For the week there was a slight gain on average.

Today's session was one of very narrow price changes for the general run of key stocks with a sprinkling of sizable gains among secondary issues. These, however, have no effect upon most popular averages.

The Associated Press average of 90 stocks rose 10 cents to $162.50. The industrial and rail components each rose 10 cents. Utilities were down the same amount. This is a minimum move for these averages.

Aircraft picked up a little strength late in the day as reports from Washington speculated that the Russians may have fired a very large missile. Coppers rose despite a drop in price for the red metal in London. Radio-television and oils also showed some gains.

There was a downward draft among steel and motor. Rubbers and chemicals were irregular. It was the narrowest market since Jan. 16, with only 1127 issues traded. Of these, 437 rose and 433 fell, a virtual standoff. New highs for 1957-58 totaled 16. Volume totaled 2,030,000 shares.

Steel Output To Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (AP)—Arthur B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp., today predicted the company will be producing a little more steel by the end of March.

"We're beginning to see little signs that perhaps were beginning to start up," Homer said, as the nation's second largest steel corporation reported on 1957 operations.

Falling Off
Despite a falling off toward the end of the year, the company's net income for 1957 shattered all previous records at $191,025,933. This was equal to $4.13 a common share. Last year net income totaled $161,411,625 or $3.47 a share.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

The "box lunch social" the Junior High Fellowship is planning to have Sunday night is an oldie that is having quite a revival lately, and not exclusively among the junior high age group. In fact, in the days when it was new and the church sociable was the main place where boy met girl, it was quite a help in pairing off, and the competition in decorating and contents really got lethal at times, they tell me.

But we've had a number of party ideas, recently, in stories crossing the desk. Cowboy parties for instance, with a rented pony for the nine-year-olds, a rock and roll session for 12-year-olds, a party at a road and gun club for a 15-year-old boy.

There was a balloon frolic for younger children up in Wooddale the other day, with the ceiling literally plastered with balloons. Our correspondent was fascinated with how it was done: the balloons are rubbed until they develop enough static electricity to hold them to the ceiling.

It's quite a trick and one we tried on New Year's Eve.

However you need to have a chair handy or a very tall man as a guest, because one by one the balloons lose their spark and come drifting down like overgrown snowflakes, and it keeps a body busy rubbing and putting them back up.

Of course, my favorite junior party was Judy Swartley's. They'd used a miniature "Daily Record" as an invitation, with a pun on the "record." Judy's family gift was a record player, and instead of a variety of gifts, the guests all brought records to start her collection. One reason it tickled me so was because, even in the miniature newspaper, there was a "Just Between Us."

There seem to be fashions in parties as there are in everything else. The treasure hunt and the scavenger hunt, once so popular, are about due for a revival, although they're much better summertime fare.

The old winter favorite—the horse drawn sleighride has vanished forever, I fear, with the advent of the salt and cinder trucks and the highway scraper.

William Hamblin Prepares To Celebrate 96th Birthday

William J. Hamblin will be the guest of honor at an open house on Sunday afternoon and Sunday night, celebrating his 96th birthday. The open house will be held at the home of his son, Clinton Hamblin, Brown St., East Stroudsburg, with whom he resides, and all his friends are invited.

Mr. Hamblin was born February 6, 1862, in Paradise Township where his family were among the pioneer settlers. He was the eldest of nine children. He and his wife themselves and eight children of whom five still survive: Earl, Anita, Brown, Russell, Julia and Clinton. He has five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mr. Hamblin has been active in many phases of community life, and served as County Treasurer from 1912 to 1916. He is in good health, and looking forward to his birthday celebration.

Future Nurses Speaker From Training School

The Stroudsburg High Future Nurses Club and their guests from the East Stroudsburg Club had as their guest speaker this week a representative of the Woman's Medical College School of Nursing in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Price spoke on the curriculum in nurses' training and the value students gain not only for their profession but for family life.

She showed slides of a typical day's activities in the life of a student nurse.

Competition No Threat If You're True To Yourself

By Anne Heywood

I am convinced that there is really no such thing as competition in the true sense of the word.

If we are doing the work that we ought to be doing, there is really nobody who can compete with us. Even stores in the same line—restaurants, children's shops or whatever—will each have a special flavor, a unique contribution, so that they cannot honestly be thought of as competitors.

It is only the copycats, the people who are trying to be something else and refusing to be themselves, vocally speaking, who need fear competition.

Lack of Degrees

This is especially true of those who deplore their lack of degrees, or fear that they will not be able to get into a given field because of such a lack.

Take, for example, this letter from a widow in Ohio.

"I love working with people, children especially, and have raised my own children as well as three nieces. However, I'm afraid to try to get a job working with children. Everybody else in the field is trained in psychiatry or social work or something, but love is all I have to offer."

Plenty of Jobs

In the first place, there are plenty of jobs working with children that do not require specialized degrees. And in the second place, the better the psychiatrists and social workers, the more they respect love as a qualification. Arrogance doesn't get very far in this field.

One organization I know of is a wonderful example of cooperation between the trained workers and lay people. That is Berkshire Industrial Farm, a national, nonsectarian, interracial school for wayward boys.

One of the staff members was telling me recently of the wonderful job they did with a boy named Roy.

Roy had been rejected by his mother, who was unhappy in her marriage. His father was an alcoholic, and a gambler and was abusive besides. The couple boy—with the latest scientific therapy. A clinical psychologist, consulting psychiatrist and trained caseworkers team up with warm, understanding cottage parents.

A Copycat Has Reason To Fear Another's Skill

In this case, credit, as you can see, is shared among the trained and the untrained.

If you feel that lack of training is keeping you from a job with people, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, care of this newspaper, and I'll send you my pamphlet, "Jobs In The People Business That Don't Require Degrees."

Training For Motherhood Like An Athlete

Bangor—Training for motherhood is similar to the training of the athlete, quoted Dr. Joseph Farace as the leader for the discussion on Child Care on Tuesday in the Senior Girls' Family Living Class of Bangor Area Joint High School.

Dr. Farace was introduced by Geraldine Ruch, chairman of the Child Care Committee. Miss Ruch also thanked Dr. Farace for substituting for Dr. Nicholas Romano who was unable to be present.

The following rules were given by Dr. Farace that should be followed by the expectant mother:

1. Proper diet to include calcium for the strong bone structure development of the child.
2. Daily walks in the sunshine.
3. Plenty of rest, including a daily nap.
4. Proper footwear.
5. Appropriate clothing.

Dr. Farace stated that exercise for the expectant mother should be simple and it could include gardening and golf.

In his closing statement Dr. Farace quoted the new born baby as being unique and having its own talents. Going to a concert or observing a "horror movie" will not have any effect of the child's development.

A question period followed the discussion. The next conference will be held on Monday with Mr. Don Dwyer, Assistant Superintendent of the Eastern Foster Home, as discussion leader.

Advisor: Mrs. Hazel Branch.

The Wyckoff Shopper

The "friendly store" A.B. Wyckoff

Betty Colvin, of our corset department, is quite excited about the fact that we are adding the famous WARNER'S line immediately after inventory, for which our store will be closed all day Monday. "Shout it out in BIG letters," Betty says, "for it's really BIG news. I want everyone to know that Wyckoff's carries the most complete and wonderful line of foundation garments available anywhere—Formfit, famous for Skippies; Tru-Balance, famous for the French Scandale; Gossard, creator of "The Answer" girdle; Playtex . . . and now WARNER'S." You'll be hearing more about Warner's later. . . it's too sensational not to merit a wealth of ink-on-white.

A telephone call from Ira Miller, who has been ill, requests that I mention the Bake Sale being conducted today, beginning at 9:30, in our center aisle. Sponsoring organization is the Morey School PTA, and proceeds will be used for playground equipment.

Harold Albert and Blanche Mackey of our appliance department were kind enough to ask Harold's wife, Gertrude, and me to join them Wednesday afternoon when they attended a Geneva sales meeting in Allentown. We had a wonderful time . . . and not just because it was a pleasant day for traveling and meeting friendly people, but because Geneva has such an exciting new line of kitchen cabinets for the current year.

There is, as you have probably noted, a marked trend toward the use of wood cabinets . . . and Geneva, while primarily a steel cabinet manufacturing company, has gone along with this trend by augmenting its line with maple, blonde, and Provincial. The Provincial cabinets steal my heart completely . . . they are elegant! There are gracefully designed drawers and solid fronts, as well as grill fronts. As for the steel cabinets themselves, these too have been much improved, and come in a wide variety of colors.

The Geneva name is so widely recognized and revered, that in 1957, when companies everywhere were moaning the loss of business, Geneva had its second biggest year. This, despite the fact the company was plagued for months with harrowing labor troubles that brought production to a standstill.

After the meeting, everyone was given a big straw hat, Calypso style, in recognition of a sales contest that will send the top salesmen to Nassau come next February. An elaborate supper followed.

Seated near us was a very lovely woman—Mrs. Tomino, I believe her name is, from Easton—whose big enthusiasm happens to be nine little children brought here by her husband and herself from Italy, along with their two mothers. The fathers had been here some time previously, and are employees of Mr. Tomino. Mrs. T. is having a wonderful time acquainting the children with our American customs and language . . . and admits that it makes one more aware of her own blessings in this country, just to see how awed and grateful these youngsters are for their wonderful new home, and so much delicious food to eat!

County PTA Council Hears Carl Secor On The Family

The tone of a community is set by the example of the parents of that community, Carl Secor, supervising principal of the East Stroudsburg Joint School district, told the representatives of the county's Parent Teachers Assns., at the council meeting held this week in the East Stroudsburg Junior High School.

His topic was "How the Community Shapes a Family," and he emphasized the interplay of individual and community, effort.

Parents who are interested in their community and work for its welfare will transmit that interest to their children, he said. In a community where children stay home at night doing their homework instead of idly roaming the streets, new families moving in will follow suit.

The community interest in education will determine the kind of school that community has, and where its emphasis lies.

"A school is as good as its faculty," he said, and cited the example of teachers and parents in teaching moral and spiritual values to their children.

However, he also emphasized physical needs of the schools, which now need building facilities, additional school finances, and more teachers.

Mrs. Lester Katz presided at the business meeting when Herbert Ayres, Arlington Heights, was named chairman of the education committee, to study the needs about educational matters and give publicity to significant developments.

Mrs. David Nelson spoke on suggested Founder's Day programs for February meetings.

Walter Melnikoff, official observer of the Monroe County Conference in Harrisburg, returned in time for the meeting, and outlined his immediate impressions. He will continue his report at a future council meeting.

The next scheduled meeting is on March 24 at the Mount Pocono School when the theme will be health and safety.
